THE BOTTOM LINE

Profile activity climbed again on the strength of 17 hyper-localized posts and the CMHA certification woven through the content. Calls and direction requests both grew as summer projects kicked off.

CHAPTER ONE

Performance Snapshot

June is when homeowners commit to outdoor projects. Profile views and calls rose together, which means the content is reaching people who are ready to buy.

◆ MONTH TAKEAWAY

Local SEO gains compound slowly and then all at once. Six weeks of consistent, neighborhood-level content is now showing up as real calls and direction requests, not just impressions.

What moved this month

- 1

Calls and directions grew together, proof the profile is converting visibility into project inquiries.
- 2

Full content cadence held through the busiest month, 17 posts without a missed slot.
- 3

CMHA certification messaging keeps separating Omega from every uncertified competitor in the feed.

CHAPTER THREE

The Plan for Next Month

Priorities on deck

- 1 Chase the drone footage from David so July content gets the video upgrade.
- 2 Add a review-request rhythm to convert June's finished projects into fresh 5-star proof.
- 3 Shift July topics toward patios and outdoor kitchens, the highest-ticket summer searches.

Show up in the neighborhood feed every single week and the phone starts ringing. June proved the cadence works.
