Executive assessment

Nexla already has meaningful search demand and a strong brand campaign. The next gain will come from making nonbrand traffic more selective, restoring trustworthy conversion measurement, and concentrating the monthly budget around enterprise AI data intent.

What the account is telling us

Brand is working

Brand Exact generated 133 clicks at a 20.98% CTR. Protect it, cap it, and keep its budget separate.

Nonbrand needs focus

MCP and Agentic consumed $357.07 at a 0.70% CTR. ETL Pipeline delivered a 0.34% CTR. Queries, match types, and ad messaging need tighter alignment.

Measurement first

The account reports an inactive conversion tag. Conversion reporting is pending validation, so bidding cannot yet optimize confidently toward qualified opportunities.

Competitive pressure

Overall impression share fell from 28% to 23% in the latest week. Budget should not be spread across low-signal themes while high-intent coverage slips.

Creative and policy

Google flags poor ad strength, a missing lead form asset, one policy-limited ad, and a learning bid strategy. These are addressable before expansion.

The core recommendation

Keep Brand Exact intact, repair conversion tracking, and add one tightly governed nonbrand Search campaign centered on Agent Data Layer, MCP, enterprise data integration, and data products.

Agent Data Layer and MCP

$200

Data Products and Pipelines

Campaign: G_US_S_NB_Enterprise-AI-Data_POC

Daily budget: $32.88

Targeting: United States, Presence only, English, Google Search only

Starting bid strategy: Maximize Clicks with a $12 CPC ceiling until primary conversions are validated

Structure: Four intent-based ad groups, Phrase and Exact match, campaign negatives, four sitelinks, five callouts

Next steps

1. Repair and validate the demo conversion from ad click through the thank-you event.
2. Review recent search terms and block irrelevant research, employment, education, and free-tool intent.
3. Resolve the policy-limited ad and replace weak responsive-search-ad assets.
4. Confirm the landing page and message match for each high-intent theme.
5. Build the new campaign with Search Partners and Display Network off.
6. Keep the campaign paused while Nexla reviews budget, targeting, copy, and tracking.
7. Launch only after written approval, then review search terms and lead quality weekly.
8. Import qualified CRM outcomes so future bidding learns from real pipeline, not form fills alone.

What success looks like

The first 30 days should establish trustworthy conversion measurement, eliminate avoidable search-term waste, improve nonbrand CTR, and identify which themes create qualified sales conversations. Scale follows proof, not platform recommendations.

Launch gate: campaign remains unpublished until tracking, landing page, budget, copy, and written approval are confirmed.
